The ! Dailn

Hongkong, April 23rd, 1872.

ATTENTION is called in the report of the Acting HARBOUR MASTER, which was published yesterday, to a matter which certainly demands very serious attention, and to which allusion has recently been made in various directions. We refer to the necessity of some providing for the seamen who come to this The Acting HARBOUR MASTER Suggests that the only remedy for many existing evils would be for the Government to take the whole charge of boarding and shipping seamen; and he adds that accommodation for each nationality, infinitely better than that of the present wretched boarding houses, need not necessarily involve an expensive building, and that the whole scheme could he free from any considerations of profit. The only wonder is that such a scheme has not been put in force long ago. The importance of the matter is such as does not need to be expatiated upon. In a Colony like this, where so large a trade is conducted we are clearly called upon to do all that is necessary to provide for a class of men, who in all parts of the world, are recognised as being reculiarly subject to snares and dangers, and specially entitled to the protection of the

We are not acquainted with the precise, nature of the constitution of the Sailors. Home, nor can we speak very definitely as to the details of its internal arrangements ; but making every allowance for a fair amoun of exaggeration, we cannot believe that the manner in which the Home is at present conducted in any way meets the requirements which such an institution is expected to meet. We have long ago heard reports from authority which ought to be reliable, to the effec that there is not to much care for the interests of the seamen as might be expected and the circumstance to which attention was recently called in a letter to this paper, that a man was refused admittance because he had not more than twenty-seven dollars upon him, certainly lends considerable colour to the statements which have been made elsewhere It is, of course, difficult to speak with certainty upon this point, as the details can only be known to very few, and we doubt not that much of the shortcomings will be found to have originated in the mode in which subordinate matters are conducted, so that the -institution is apt to fail in its objects in a way of which those who have only a general supervision of it can little understand or appreciate. The incident respecting the sale of liquurs at the bar is a case in point, and wo believe there are other matters of a similar nature which are open to exception, and that it would be very desirable that the whole matter were well looked into.

It is, of course, a question whether the Acting Harbour Master o is correct in assuming that the Home ought necessarily to be placed under the control of the Government; as, if sufficient energy could be secured by private management, there is no anprose by the defendant that he would settle way. doubt that there is much to be said in favour of the latter plan. As a rule, it is undesirable to place under Government management institutions which can be properly managed by private enterprise, and this principle has probably influenced those who matured the arrangements under Trustees and Directors at present existing. There is, however, an unfortunate tendency among Boards in Hong- tiff replied that he left because he was struck 10 o'clock she went again and procured a conkong if not exactly to shirk their duties, at least to pay rather slender attention to them. For this, they are probably not very greatly to blame, as the pressing nature of the ing a nominal fine of one dollar. occupations of busy men in this Colonysis well known. But there always is a danger that the Superintendent or Manager of an institution here will very soon get clear of struck by the defendant; and, secondly, because the control of his Committee; and that a whole heap of mismanagement, neither sancfion nor approved by such Committee, will gradually creep in For this reason, it may perhaps be desirable that the control of the dating back to August 1870. The defendant

In regard to the one latelligible sen. THE NEW EPICOREAN PROPAGANDA. Government should be called upon to exordise such supervision as would render lax chanagement impossible. Possibly the difficalty might be met by some compromise between a purely Government management and the one at present existing; that is to say, the details might be supervised by a nen-official committee, while definite Government rules might be established for the general conduct of the institution, and a responsible Superintendent appointed by Government to carry these rules out.

We cannot pretend, in the necessarily de- take it. The want of an Indian interpreter at the Police Court, has made itself felt in various ways for some years past. The Indian constable told off for this duty is conspicuously inefficient, his interpretation being at all times vague, and very often inconsistent with itself. A great deal of valuable time is lost A Co., Shangbai. A great dear of valuable time is lost afraid of laving to pay twice. Mun-sai (who HALL'& HOLTZ and KELLY every week in the attempts made by the appeared) said that his partier, Mun-kwong, magistrates to arrive at the true story intended to be conveyed by a witness. It is quito difficult enough, and takes up enough time, to arrive at the truth when the witnesses are understood, but when the interpreter has also to be rigorously cross examined, the thing becomes tedious. one can be certain, under these circumstances, that the final result of his interpretation is the one the witness would give if he could speak English, and of course the chances of the escape of guilty men and the punish great enough already with Asiatic witnesses) become very greatly increased; and it becomes almost an open question whether a fair toss-up would not serve the ends of the blood from the wound in her mouth had justice as well as a system which decides the gravest cases on the unreliable translation of unreliable evidence. The case which we report to-day, furnishes another illustration of apparently a paltry one, having arisen but had it been a serious charge the would give testimony in the cate. result would have been the same, the woman would have got off for want an interpreter. Mr. Deane, who was Court at the time, remarked that he had not a man fit to interpret, but he would endeavour to get the best the Force could on the Police Force for interpretation? The English-speaking Indians in the Force are no doubt useful enough in their way, and for reform in the arrangements for shipping and ordinary police purposes, but why should there not be a properly paid interpreter attached exclusively to the Magistracy?
